London, June 22.

On Saturday and Yesterday arrived the Mails due from Holland and Flanders.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated June 27.

Hambourg, June 20.

P Rince Menzikoff has made a Present to each of the Deputies of our Magistracy who treated with him, of the Picture of the Czar his Master, set with Diamonds to the value of 1000 Crowns. He received the 18th at his Quarters at Wandesbek an Express from his Czarian Majesty, with an Account, that that Monarch arrived happily near Helsingfort on the Coast of Finland the 10th of May, with a Fleet of 280 Sail, and a good Number of Troops of Imbarkation. • That he found there Major-General Ahrenfeldt intrenched with some Swedish Troops; that his Czarian Majesty landed his with Design to attack the Swedes; but at Day-break their Camp appeared on fire, the Enemy having retired by favour of the Night into a neighbouring Wood, leaving behind them their Cannon and Ammunition with other Arms; that thereupon the Czar marched directly to Bergo, to attack Lieutenant-General Lutbeker, who was posted there with some Swedish Troops; but in his Approach the Swedes retired with great Precipitation; that his Czarian Majesty gave Order for erecting there a great Magazine of Provisions; and that he had resolved to march directly to Abo, whither the Swedes had retired. The Muscovite Troops which were in Holstein, have begun to march towards the Dutchy of Saxe-Lawenbourg; 'tis said they are to return to Muscovy, and that Prince Menzikoff has received Order to repair forthwith to the Czar. The Saxon Troops which had advanced into the Diocess of Eutin, have part of them repassed the Trave, and threaten to enter into our four Bailliages, to oblige our Magistrates the sooner to give them Satisfaction on their Demands. There are Letters from Stockholm importing, that they had already received Advice there of the Descent of the Muscovites in Finland; that the Inhabitants of that Province came flocking to Stockholm for Refuge, which had caused a great Consternation there; that thereupon the Regents had called together the States of the Kingdom; that 'twas foreseen there would be warm Debates in the Assembly; and that 'twas feared there was some Intelligence between the ancient Nobility and the Czar of Muscovy, the rather because his Czarian Majesty had published a Manifesto in Finland, in which he declares, that 'twas not to dethrone the King that he had entered Sweden, but to restore the Nobility to their ancient Privileges, in order to the bringing to Reason a Prince filled with Ambition who would not give Ear to any Proposals of Peace, nor suffer his Neighbours to be quiet.

From the Paris Letter, dated June 23.

Paris, June 23. Letters from Alsace of the 15th Instant advise, that the Preparations were continued for besieging Landau, in which we are assured there are not above 6500 Men, most of them new Levies; that the Trenches were to be opened the 20th or 22d at furthest, and that 'twas talked the Siege of Keyserlautern would be made at the same time. The Marshal de Villars has taken such Measures that he will be able to subsist his Army in the Palatinate, and draw Contributions from all the States of the Empire situate on this Side of the Rhine, during the whole Campaign, without being disturbed by the Enemy, unless they be reinforced with considerable Succours, which they cannot procure without considerable Sums, and this they have not, they have hardly Funds sufficient for subsisting the Troops which they have in the Field; mean while they boast they shall shortly have 150000 Men; but if they had 200000, we have above 300000 on Foot, all old Troops, ready to march wherever 'tis necessary; so that whatever Stratagem Prince Eugene may make use of, we shall always be in a Condition to undertake any thing, and to subsist all our Troops at the Expence of the Circles of the Rhine, till the Archduke shall condescend to grant us the reasonable Satisfaction demanded for the Elector of Bavaria. 'Tis certain, that the more the Archduke persists in his frivolous Pretensions, the worse will his Affairs and those of the Princes of the Empire fare; and if they do not timely prevent the Progress which the Marshal de Villars is able and designs to make, without giving the Empire any Quarter, they may be obliged whether they will or no to accept Terms less honourable and advantageous to the Empire and to the House of Austria, than those which they have rejected as ignominious. Mean while Prince Eugene who is the primum Mobile of this War, which tends more to the Destruction than to maintaining the Liberty of the Empire (as is pretended,) is not Physician good enough to cure the Wounds which the Marshal de Villars is in a Condition to give the Empire; and 'twill even be enough for him to get out of this Affair with Honour.

From the Amst. Courant, dated June 28.

Brussel, June 26. We have Advice from Ghent, that the Night between the 22d and 23d Instant there was a Mutiny among the British Troops in Garrison there, which was not quieted till the 24th. 7 or 800 Soldiers of several Regiments got together, and having broke open the Provost's Quarter, set at Liberty one of their Comrades who was condemned to be executed the next Day, after which they made themselves Masters of the Gates of Larian and St. Peter, as also of two or three Cannon, with which they posted themselves between those Gates and the Walls,

Walls, determining to defend themselves against whoever should attack them. The Commanding Officer of the British Troops called the whole Garrison under Arms, after having used his Endeavours first to bring the Mutineers to Reason by fair Means; but the Soldiers of the Garrison refusing to obey their Officers, would not give fire on the Mutineers; so that the Commandant for fear of worse Consequences, was obliged to capitulate with the Mutineers, and to stipulate that they should not be punished in any wise for this Uproar, (the Cause of which was, as they pretended, that Deductions were made from their Pay for Tents, when there is no Campaign and consequently no use for Tents,) and also that the fore-said condemned Soldier should be pardoned. This Affair makes a very great Noise.
